This website is not available in your country If you are an American of Polish descent, author or seller of cookbooks, or country music artist, then October is the month for you. That's because October is Polish American Heritage Month, National Cookbook Month, and Country Music Month, as well as (the most serious) Health Literacy Month. The United States is very productive in creating national month events. Along with businesses (from big business to local mother and pop stores), numerous notable organizations and special interest groups establish one or more offerings during a calendar month to get their name and message out to the public. While it might make sense for vegetarian food and pork lovers to celebrate their food preferences at different times of the year, owners of Italian restaurants may take this month to celebrate both pizza and pasta-topped with pepperoni and/or spinach. And for those organizations that help people abused by a spouse or partner, October is the month to raise an additional amount of attention to that important task. The following events occur each year for the entire calendar month. One theory about the importance of the length of his cycle is that 260 days are associated with pregnancy [source: Maya Mystery School]. Another suggests that the calendar represented the amount of time for corn cultivation. However, it is more likely that it was based on Mayan reverence for numbers 13 and 20. In the Gregorian calendar, we have seven days of the week and, depending on the month, anywhere from 28 to 31 days. The Tzolk'in calendar consists of a set of 20-day names, symbolized by images called glyphs, and 13 numbers called tones. Days are numbered from one to 13 and names are also given in order. The beginning of the Tzolk'in calendar begins with the name of the first day, Imix', and number one. The days continue in succession, with the second day being a combination of ik' and number two. The results of the and the day numbers are combined sequentially until all 13 tonnes are used. Once the calendar arrives on day 13, declared by b'en and number 13, the numbers start again with one. but the day names move forward with the 14th glyph, Ix. Rotating thus, the two sets form 260 unique combinations of a day name and a number. For example, once you reach the end of the day cycle with 7 Ajaw, the day names start again in Imix, and the numbers continue: 8 Imix', 9 Ik', 10 Ak'b'al and so on. This content is not compatible on this device. Consider two interlocking gears, with the 13 numbers distributed around a smaller circular tool that fits inside the larger tool of day names marked in hieroglyphics. If you lock these gears together at number one and Imix' day name, then rotate the gears until you get to one and Imix' again, you'll get 260 unique days. These gears rotate until the final combination clicks into place at 13 Ajaw, marking the end of the year. It's easy to see the importance the Mayans put in Jolk's diary. For example, they believed that your date of birth determines the characteristics you will show in your personality – as some people believe your astrological sign does today. Holy men also schedule some events throughout the year based on the Tzolk'in calendar. At the beginning of each ouinal (20-day period), a shaman would count forward to determine when religious and ritual events would occur. He will then choose the dates that would be the most prosperous or luckiest for the community. Despite its myriad functions, the Tzolk'in calendar still could not measure a solar year, the time it takes for the sun to make a full cycle. Because of this, the Mayans needed a more accurate calendar to track the amount of time we consider a full year. Getty October is the month that newer models of laptops, computers, and personal electronics begin to appear in stores in preparation for the long winter holiday selling season. Older models are priced to sell quickly to make room to showcase new models. If an older model you find has not been hit hard with the markdown pen, be stable and ask for a better discount. October is also a good month to find super cheap refurbished and open-box material for the same reason that stores need space. If you're looking for the latest personal electronics, skip shopping in October unless you buy the older models at a saving of about 20 percent directed at you. Like to-do lists, calendars help provide the illusion of organizing and controlling tasks and commitments. But it's not just any calendar he'll make. At least it's my theory that if you're not interested in the style and layout of the calendar software or the calendar format you use to track events, you might not need a calendar at all. Maybe it's a matter of taste or aesthetics, It's a touch of OCD. But if you're a kind of diary person, you have some decent options heading into the new year. Word has always been lacking in offering useful built-in calendar templates--heavy on bad design elements and light in operation. So I built this little bare-bones template that automatically enters the dates for you, depending on the number of days you specify. There is room to enter your appointments and activities. And not much else. It's simple, but. But. (You can stick a little clipart in there if you feel the boost. snowflake for January, whatever.) Then you have the clicker options, courtesy of Microsoft Office Online. These are prefabricated calendars for various applications and purposes. Sixty-four of them, in total. There are many academic calendars in Visio, Excel, Publisher, and Word format. Calendars per month, year and multi-year. Portrait, landscape, five days, seven. A variety of incredibly ugly PowerPoint calendars, including some incorrect stripes and a kind of plaid madras. Lunar calendars for different time zones (who knew the moon was working this way), photo calendars, postcard calendars. And even a basic 12-month calendar in Word without a single piece of art deco design nonsense in it. If your taste runs like this. Happy diary! Calendar!
